Teaching Design in a Global Context

All things in my life are about what I've come to embrace as this idea of design.

I truly understand and appreciate the importance of quality education.

I spent a lots of time thinking, imagining, pretending, playing.

My high school teachers saw something in me, that I was unaware of...

Philadelphia

A nighttime photograph of a city street in Philadelphia. The street is paved with cobblestones and leads towards Independence Hall, which is illuminated and stands out in the distance. On the right, a building is lit up with blue lights. On the left, there are light trails from moving vehicles. The word "Philadelphia" is overlaid in large white text on the left side of the image.

An aerial photograph of the New York City skyline. The Chrysler Building, with its iconic Art Deco spire, is the central focus. To its right is the dark, rectangular One World Trade Center. The background shows the dense urban landscape of Manhattan, the Hudson River, and the George Washington Bridge. The text "Uniquely 'American'" is overlaid in a large, bold, black font across the middle of the image.

A yellow ruler is shown diagonally across the frame. It has a hole at the 1-inch mark. The ruler is marked in inches and centimeters. The text "Why don't you use...?" is overlaid in white.
